Dan Freeman -
Laboratory Services Technician

Dan Freeman has recently joined Avista Technologies to enhance the in-house development and service capabilities of the UK operation. Dan's role encompasses developing new products and providing customer service. Service work includes customer autopsies, membrane test cleans, coagulant dose evaluation, material compatibility testing, antiscalant dose rate testing and site troubleshooting support.

On the development side Dan is set to make a major contribution to the product range with a programme of test work underway to provide environmentally friendly products for discharge direct to sea or river.

Dan is an applied chemist with 10 years of experience including 7 years in desalination. His desalination experience which includes antiscalant development and onsite testing means he has been able to start providing essential support very quickly.
